into three wagons, and after an exasperating, work-filled journey over muddy winter roads, arrived in the valley on December 11. After searching for a location he rented a building owned by Moses Cluff. One year later he had finished his home on Main Street; and then his stock was moved to the south room of that building, which served as his store. Both his wife, Permelia and his son, Joseph, worked in the store, and Joseph soon became the manager of one of Wasatch County's first permanent business institutions.

The income from raising grain for the stagecoach was seriously menaced in 1868-69 when a plague of grasshoppers ate most of the crops. Fortunately, it was also at this time that the Union Pacific railroad entered Utah; and most of the men in the county found work with their teams on the grading being done in Echo and Weber Canyons.
